FIRST GUNS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

POLITICS promises to monopolize the center of the stage during this week. State, congressional and municipal primaries and conventions, in the East and West, North and South, are included in the calendar of political events.

Primary elections to choose congressional candidates will be held tomorrow in the Seventh district of New Jersey and the Twelfth district of Massachusetts, in the first to name a man to fill out the unexpired term of the late Representative Bremner and in the second to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Representative Carley, who has become mayor of Boston. The Twelfth Massachusetts district is strongly Democratic and the contest there is confined to a fight for the Democratic nomination. The New Jersey district, however, is regarded as more or less doubtful and both the Democrats and the Republicans are preparing for a strong fight. The Progressives and the Socialists also will have candidates. The elections in both districts will be held April 7.

A general primary will be held in South Dakota for the nomination by all parties of candidates for United States senator, representatives in Congress and governor and other State officers to be voted for next November. Interest centers chiefly in the contest for the Republican nomination for United States senator.

A primary will practically decide who is to be the next mayor of Milwaukee. The contest is one of the most spectacular in the history of that city. The majority candidates are Gerhard A. Bading, the present mayor, who seeks re-election as a non-partisan candidate; Emil Seidel, the former Socialist mayor who aspires to restore the Socialist party in control of the city affairs; David S. Rose, who served five terms as mayor, and Theobald Otjen, former representative in Congress. The real contest is believed to be between Bading and Seidel.

UPRISING IN IRELAND.

THE present situation in Ireland challenges the American sense of humor and about ninety days from now it is possible that the slow going British intellect may awake to the grim grotesqueness of the defiance hurled at the mightiest power on earth. The very audacity of the proceedings is more than amusing. An army of 120,000 armed and trained men fitted with artillery and rifles stand guard over the holy interests of Ulster and London is throwing conniptions at the possibility of shedding the real red blood of a few distinguished rebels.

For an understanding of the case it is well to know that the conflict can be reduced to the concrete fact of minority rule. The majority has decreed Home Rule for Ireland and the minority, after exhausting all legislative resources, has solemnly defied the mother country. And Britannia stands for the affront put upon her by the praetors and centurions of the household troops who show the white feather the moment duty calls them to an unpleasant task. This is cowardice of the most aggravated character and the fact that such officers of the imperial troops are allowed to resign will punish the service by relieving it of a lot of gold brand duds who are more at home leading the cotillion than at the head of troops in the field. However, it stands as a stain and reproach on the national army that such a condition should prevail. Hesitation in the face of hostilities is a puerile plea that will convince the people of Great Britain that in relying on their vaunted army they have been leaning on a broken reed.

These gallant soldiers apparently fear modern ammunition in the hands of Ulsterites and prefer to stay at home with their mothers and sisters rather than face the music of bullets whistling in unpleasant proximity to their fastidious ears. The tango has more melody than the shriek of shrapnel and the pricking of a sword through tender flesh would bring convulsions.

But it is well to indulge in a retrospective glance at the progenitors of these same military gentlemen. When the Irish peasantry revolted they were bayoneted and hung, drawn and quartered by the fiery ancestors of the present day dandies of the British army. The peasants had nothing more than pikestaffs to meet the cannon of the British army and their drilling was by handfoul behind thick hedges where they held councils of war. These poor deluded people revolted at the obnoxious rule of foreign landlords and an oppressive government, and when they were beaten and exiled to penal servitude in Botany Bay, their descendants were told to follow constitutional methods and gain redress through legal channels. This has been done. Parliament has approved Home Rule for Ireland and the side of the oppressor rises up in arms to defy the empire on whose banners the sun never sets. This dawdling policy beats the theories of Wilson that he can win over Mexico after waiting until each side destroys the other.

Yet this is the country that the United States is asked to know to-in the matter of canal tolls. Supine and degenerate, effete and effeminate, the throne of the British empire is tottering and all that saves it is the virility of the colonies such as Canada, Australia and New Zealand, who had to do the fighting in the Boer war to save the crown from disgraceful defeat by a handful of Dutch descendants.

Con Ahern, the lovable man of Virginia City, has passed to his last account. Let us hope that the good angel who does the recording has not overlooked the excellent qualities that endeared the man to his fellows. He was without a fault and his record was beyond reproach. As a loyal citizen devoted to the best interests and the upbuilding of Nevada, Con Ahern had no equals. He was intensely patriotic, a staunch Republican in a Democratic community and one who never lost the esteem of his neighbors. He was too popular to be a good politician and his failures in that field may be traced to the fact that he never allowed his tongue to say a word that would injure the feelings of the smallest child in camp. Had Con followed the fortunes of mining he would have scored even a greater success in either of the southern camps, but he chose to remain with Virginia City to the last.

Don't forget the school election. Unless parents take more interest than they have manifested it would be better to close the schools and save the expense of operating. Two months from now you may repine over conditions, but you will only have yourself to blame if they do not suit you. Remember there is property valued at $85,000 belonging to the rising generation and if this property is not well administered the consequences will react on your boys and girls. Every good citizen of Tonopah should arouse himself to the necessity for doing something more than put up a feeble imitation of the watchful waiting policy of Weary Willy at Washington.

Los Angeles has some bright thoughts and one of them is the "Pick Up" club that has become one of the popular institutions of that town. The members have no dues to pay and therefore the club is gaining members every day. All you have to do to qualify for the job is to resolve to pick up every piece of paper or rubbish that defiles your path. Remember clean-up day is due this week. Then comes flower day.

Dig up your rubbers and see if you can find that umbrella you used last April. Tonopah is going to have a shower this evening or tomorrow; if the weather bureau is not shooting wide of the mark.

Sardis Summerfield and Harry B. Lind assembled in Carson Saturday and the country was advised that the Progressive party of Nevada was in session.

If you don't own Atlanta or Jumbo Ex. you cannot be in Goldfield society. This is a straight tip from the society editor.

Swat the fly. This is the season for the noble work to begin. One fly slain at this time will save millions later.

BEEF

yields fibrin and albumen—the constituents of nerve and muscle.
 In our tonic we use the best beef extract to be had.

IRON

furnishes the blood with oxygen and keeps it rich and pure. We use iron in an easily assimilated form, one that is free from teeth corroding and constipating effects.

WINE

tones up the system and aids digestion. We use a rich, mellow wine that is sufficiently aged.

Physicians endorse and prescribe our Beef, Iron and Wine. A good remedy for spring debility.
